GREAT WAR FACTOIDS:

- Disqualified for poor eyesight, Harry Truman memorized the eye chart. He later served as an army captain in the American Expeditionary Force.
- At the beginning of the war, the regular army consisted of only 127,000 soldiers. By 1918, more the 4,000,000 had served.
- Army camps were the first place many American soldiers experienced electric lighting and indoor plumbing.
